

What is claimed is:

1. A storage container for compact disk protective covers, being an easily accessed storage structure for users, for facilitating packaging and arrangement of compact disk protective covers, formed by folding an integral board spread, and comprising the characteristics that:

the storage container is provided with an arched aperture at an edge of a top portion thereof, and a long opening at a front side thereof for corresponding with the arched aperture; through an L-shaped design formed by the arched aperture and the long opening, users are facilitated to with easy access; and compact disk protective covers are stored and packaged intact using an accommodating chamber formed, thereby overcoming drawbacks of prior plastic coating packaging for compact disk protective covers.
2. The storage container for compact disk protective covers in accordance with claim 1, wherein the storage container is formed by folding a board made of paper or plastic extrusion.
3. The storage container for compact disk protective covers in accordance with claim 1, wherein a height of the long opening provided at a front side portion of the storage container is extended to a lower edge of the front side portion.

4. The storage container for compact disk protective covers in accordance with claim 1, wherein the storage container is provided with a 5mm gap at a top portion of the front side portion thereof for
- 5 facilitating access of compact disk protective covers contained.